Creating Environmental friendly Society

Laba Dhoj Waiba, a 56 years old man lives with his family in Banakhu Salleni, Mahabharat Rural Municipality-6. He has a small shop as a business besides involving himself in agriculture. According to him, environmental sanitation program has made him realize what kind of surrounding he is living in.

He tells, “Everyone knows the importance of environmental sanitation. The only difference is in practice. Even though I knew about the proper disposal of wastes, I never gave my time to manage those wastes. I threw wastes carelessly and the people who came to my shop also threw wastes around my house anywhere they liked”. After attending the program, he dug a pit nearby his house. Now, he throw all the solid wastes in the pit and tells everyone who throw wastes near his shop to throw it in the pit. After the pit becomes full, he burn them and repeat the same process again.”

He believes that in coming days there will be not even a single plastic wrapper littered around our community.
